“When Sunday Services End”

Today is a special day for Christians. It is a day of worship, fellowship, Bible study, encouragement, and remembrance of our Lord's death through the Lord's Supper. It is a blessing to assemble together and to focus our minds upon God and spiritual things. But an important question remains:

The Christian life was never intended to be lived only a few hours each week. Jesus did not call us to be disciples on Sunday and spectators the rest of the week. He calls us to follow Him daily. Jesus said, "If any man will come after me, let him deny himself, and take up his cross daily, and follow me" (Luke 9:23).

Our worship on Sunday should influence how we live on Monday morning. The songs we sing should continue in hearts filled with gratitude. The prayers we offer should lead us to depend upon God throughout the week. The lessons we hear should shape our decisions, our attitudes, and our conversations.

What does your Christianity look like at work? How does it appear in the classroom, at the ball field, in the grocery store, or at home with your family? Paul instructed Christians to "walk worthy of the vocation wherewith ye are called" (Ephesians 4:1). Our faith should be visible not only in the assembly but in every area of life.

The world does not need Christians who merely attend services; it needs Christians who live out their faith every day. The greatest sermons many people will ever hear are the lives we live before them (Mt. 5:14-16).

Sunday should not be the end of our faith for the week; it should be the beginning of another week of service, obedience, and devotion to God. When Monday comes, may our coworkers, neighbors, friends, and families still see Christ living in us.
